My Motto in Life

you can be the change

Date: _____

"The smallest act of kindness is worth more than the grandest intention." — Oscar Wilde

Making a difference doesn't always require grand gestures. It's about finding small ways to positively impact the people around you every day. From lending a hand to a friend, to spreading kindness online, each act of goodness creates a ripple effect.

This planner is designed to inspire you to take action in a way that is meaningful and sustainable. Whether you're making a change in your community or simply brightening someone's day, you have the power to leave a lasting impression.

What impact do you want to leave on the world?

Making a difference doesn't have to be about doing something big, but about showing up with intention. What would it look like for you to start creating small moments of impact each day?

You don't need to wait for the perfect time to make a difference—every moment is an opportunity to contribute to the greater good. Let today be the day you begin.

kindness ripple effect

Date: _____

Kindness is like throwing a pebble into a pond—it creates ripples that can reach farther than you might expect. Let's make your kindness splash today!

Act 1

Think of small kind things you can do today. It could be anything from complimenting someone to helping someone with a task. Write it below!

Act 4

Act 2

Act 5

Act 3

Act 6

Now, imagine your kindness causing ripples across the water. Who might feel the effects of your act next? (Write on the ripple)

How could it inspire them to spread kindness, too?

mental health matters

Date: _____

Sometimes, the most powerful way to support someone is just by being there. Listening without trying to fix everything shows people they matter.

How can you offer that same comfort to someone else?

Here are a few kind actions that support others emotionally. Check any you want to try this week—or add your own!

Make eye contact and really focus when someone's talking

Let someone vent without jumping in with advice

Ask how someone is really doing—and listen without interrupting

Send a kind message to check in on someone

How did it feel to be a good listener/emotional supporter?

You don't need to have all the answers to help someone—you just need to care. Listening is love in action. Keep practicing, and your quiet strength will shine in big ways.

lead by example

Date: _____

People watch more than they listen—what you do leaves a lasting impression. Think of a value that truly matters to you (like kindness, honesty, patience, or responsibility). Now ask yourself—do your actions reflect it every day?

- 1 What is one core value you truly believe in but sometimes struggle to live out consistently?

(Examples: patience, honesty, compassion, courage)

- 2 Describe a recent moment when you had the chance to show this value—but didn't. What held you back?

- 3 Imagine someone younger or newer watching your actions. What lesson would you want them to learn from how you live this value?

What are 3 small, daily actions you can take to model this value more clearly?

How can you keep including others in small ways, even when it's not easy?

share your story

Date: _____

Think about a part of your life, an experience, or a lesson you've learned that could help someone else. Sharing your story not only makes a difference but also connects you with others in meaningful ways.

What is your story?

The form consists of a large rectangular box with a black border. Inside the box, there are ten horizontal lines for writing. In the bottom right corner of the box, there is a cartoon illustration of a man with short brown hair, wearing a grey suit jacket over a light blue shirt. He is standing behind a white podium with three microphones. He is gesturing with his right hand, pointing upwards with his index finger, and his left hand is resting on the podium. The illustration is in a simple, clean style with grey and blue tones.
